This Resource Guide was developed and organized by Senior Human Relations Consultants Jay Harber (retired) and Zara Buggs Taylor, with the cooperation of the Network Against Hate Crime, and under the general supervision of Assistant Executive Director Lionel Martinez.

MISSION STATEMENT

The Network was established by the Los Angeles County Commission on Human Relations in 1984 and consists of community organizations as well as interested individuals. The Network meets regularly to exchange information about hate crime and related incidents, and the needs of victims. The Network also monitors the occurrence of hate crime and other related incidents, plans preventive and educational programs, and lobbies for legislation which strengthens penalties for violent acts.

Hate Crime: Definition

Any criminal act or attempted act which is motivated by the victim's race, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, gender or disability status.

ADL Law Report: Hate Crime Statutes: A Response to Anti-Semitic Vandalism and Violent Bigotry

Hate Crimes: Policies and Procedures for Law Enforcement Agencies

Hate Groups in America: A Record of Bigotry and Violence

Law Enforcement Bulletin (A quarterly bulletin on terrorism and extremism)

Extremism on the Right

II. SELECTED ADL PUBLICATIONS ON EXTREMISM

"The Pace Amendment"

ADL Background Report, May, 1987. The report describes the efforts of an individual in California using the pseudonym of James O. Pace to promote an amendment to the U.S. Constitution -- the so-called "Pace Amendment" -- limiting American citizenship to white persons "of the European race." The report exposes the "Pace Amendment's" racism in the guise of legal scholarship and reveals the support of some well known racists and anti-Semites for the plan.

"The LaRouche Political Cult: Packaging Extremism"

ADL "Special Report," Spring, 1986. A comprehensive analysis of the LaRouche political cult, whose followers operate a complex of organizations and publications that promote a conspiracy-filled ideology laced with anti-Semitism. This report examines the cult's intimidation tactics, deceptive political strategies and its funding sources.

"Shaved for Battle: Skinheads Target America's Youth"

ADL "Special Report," November 1987. Updated February 1988. The report focuses on certain elements of shaven-headed youths known as "skindheads" who wear neo-Nazi insignia, preach violence against Blacks, Jews, and other minorities, and who have become a menacing presence in several cities across the country. The report warns that racist "skinheads" have the potential to attract alienated youth, that their ranks are growing, and that they are regarded as potential recruits by the neo-Nazi movement.

"The Committee of the States"

ADL Background Report, October, 1987. The report provides information about this California-based extreme group, five of whose members were convicted in 1987 of threatening the lives of several public officials, including a Nevada state judge.

"Extremism Targets the Prisons"

ADL "Special Report," June, 1986. This publication examines the campaign of right and left wing extremist groups to recruit and agitate in the nation's prisons. Some prisoners have affiliated with these outside groups to enhance their status and privileges inside the institution. In some cases, prison officials have restricted a prisoner's access to racial religious materials from these outside extremist groups on institutional security grounds. A special Appendix describes several lawsuits brought by prisoners on this issue.

"ADL Paramilitary Training Statute: A Response to Extremism"

ADL "Law Report," Fall, 1986. Outlines ADL's efforts to encourage states to implement a model statute on paramilitary training, drafted by ADL's Legal Affairs Department. The model statute, which has now been enacted into law in 18 states, imposes criminal penalties for participants where training is going on in preparation for "civil disorder." In addition to analyzing the constitutionality of the statute, the report summarizes paramilitary legislation already on the books and its deterrent impact on violence-inclined individuals and groups.

Author: Waxman, Barbara Faye

Journal: Journal of Sexuality and Disability Vol: 9 Iss: 3

Date: October/November 1991

Jrnl Group: Commentary

Abstract: This article examines the cultural ideology about disability which leads to violence, including crimes of a sexual nature, directed at disabled persons. It asserts a disability rights perspective and also focuses on the socio-political model of disability which provides a greater understanding as to why these crimes occur. The ultimate goal of the author is to argue for the inclusion of the disability community as a group at risk in the Federal Hate Crimes Statistics Act, which is designed to track hate crimes.

Subjects: Disabled; Sexual Abuse, Hate
